

Meet the conductor;

Carla grew up playing in orchestras in Rochester, New York, and attending Eastman School of Music chamber music classes. She loved going to the finger lakes, bike riding, and Rochester street festivals growing up in Rochester.

Mrs. Loukota went to New Mexico State University, where she received her Bachelor of Arts in Music Education degree, and performed in Opera, Chamber, and Symphonic Orchestras around the state. She loved hiking, mountain biking, skiing, and travelling in New Mexico. She taught middle school orchestra in El Paso, TX, and elementary school orchestra in Mesa, AZ. While in AZ, she earned her Masters degree in Education from Northern Arizona University. Carla also loved exploring in Arizona, and spring training games.

After moving to Massachusetts, she taught in Foxboro Public Schools, and now she is happy to be in Franklin. Now she enjoys exploring New England and always will enjoy her students and orchestra.
